ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—In compliance with law and precedent, the following report is respectfully submitted:—

Of the eleven school districts in town, ten have had one or more terms during the school year. Only three of these can be said to have a sufficient number of pupils to occupy the time and attention of a competent and energetic teacher; and yet, however small the school, the teacher is required to keep the legal time, six hours each day, with few scholars, and but few recitations; much time must necessarily be spent in waiting, which, with a sufficiently large school, the time would be occupied. Our population for several decades has been decreasing. In the earlier history of the town, a large family was the rule; to-day a large family is a rare exception. Then again, farms have been deserted, buildings removed or burned, and not rebuilt, hence, once large schools are now very small, with but very little school money.

In view of these facts, your attention is called to the question: Are you spending your school money to the best advantage? Is it best to continue all of these small districts, with short terms and few scholars, or discontinue some and unite others? I fully agree with my predecessor, that the town should be re-districted. As far as I am able to judge the town system has many advantages. The subject is submitted to your wisdom.

Why the ladies in town do not avail themselves of the legal rights conferred by statute law, to wit: The right to vote and hold office in school districts, I am at a loss to know. Surely, mothers, you must be interested in the education of your children; then why not show that interest by attending the school meeting, and take your share of the responsibility?

The registers show that by far the largest number of visits in schools during the year have been made by ladies. In compliance with an act of the last legislature, I have introduced Physiology into our school, especially teaching the effects of stimulants and narcotics on the human system.

The following are the authorized text-books in town :

READERS AND SPELLERS,	Monroe's Series.
ARITHMETICS,	Harper's Graded.
GEOGRAPHIES,	" " "
GRAMMAR,	Harvey's Language Course.
BOOK-KEEPING,	Mcservey's.
PHYSIOLOGY.	Brand's.

DISTRICT NO 1.—SOUTH ROAD.

Prudential Committee, A. E. Quimby.

Summer term taught by Miss Angelia Kilburn. This is the largest school in town, and has the most money, with a large, well-lighted school-room, furnished with two stoves, charts, maps, and blackboards, also, a shady playground adjoining. Miss Kilburn devoted her best energies to this school, not only in teaching from the text books, but to impress her pupils that good manners was an essential part of their education, and that they must obey the rules and regulations laid down. In this her efforts were very satisfactory, and commendable progress was made in the various studies.

Roll of Honor.—Mabel L. Bean, Myrtie Harmon, Millie G. Keyes, Christie E. Eastman.

WINTER TERM.

Frank B. Chase, of Tilton, teacher. The district manifested wisdom by selecting for this term a male teacher of good weight and measure. We made extra visits during this long term. Mr. Chase entered this school an experienced teacher, and soon had it well in hand, and succeeded in maintaining good order and discipline. At the several visits the school appeared studious and making advancement. The examination at the close was creditable to both teacher and scholars, especially so in the several classes in arithmetic, a large class going through the book. The grammar classes were less advanced. The concert reading very good. Both teachers complain of irregular attendance.

Roll of honor.—Eva Fellows.

DISTRICT No. 2.—CENTRE ROAD.

Prudential Committee, Michael Lorden.

SUMMER AND FALL TERMS.

Taught by Miss Gustie J. Stone, of Webster. With her ability and long experience in teaching, Miss Stone entered this school with superior qualifications. Considering the amount of schooling in this district, it cannot be said to rank with some of our other schools in scholarship, that have much less school money. Many of the scholars fail to give proof of close study. With a good teacher, this school does not give flattering results, with some exceptions. Brain work is needed on the part of the scholars.

Roll of Honor.—First Term.—Charles James, Bertie James, Fred H. Pettengill, Nellie Loverin.

Second Term.—Bessie Prince, Alma Wheeler, Fred H. Pettengill, Bertie James, Elma Wheeler, Susie Wheeler.

WINTER TERM.

Taught by John W. Little. This district has one of the poorest of the poor school houses in town. An open, loose, dingy old structure, in a poor location, an unfit place to hold a winter term of school. With a good teacher, under these adverse circumstances, great advancement and the best results were not expected. Attendance very irregular. The parents of many of the smaller children kept them out of school, rather than expose their health in such a cold school-house. With the experience of this term, another winter school should not be attempted.

Roll of Honor.—Bessie Prince, George Stevens, John Tucker, Bert James, Susie Wheeler, Elma Wheeler, Alma Wheeler, Arthur Greene.

DISTRICT NO. 3.—GREELEY.

Prudential Committee, Nathaniel Sawyer.

Two terms, both taught by Miss Carrie W. Sawyer. A good school-house, and very well furnished. A small school; a part of the scholars quit going, but with Miss Sawyer's patience and perseverance, the school made good advancement. Three schools of this size could be taught by this teacher, if united, thus receiving first class instruction. The parents in this district have manifested a deep interest in the education of their children.

DISTRICT NO. 4,—SCRIBNER'S CORNER.

Prudential Committee, Charles C. Rogers.

Two terms, taught by Miss Nellie J. Rogers. Miss Rogers' home is in this district; she also is at home in this school as a teacher, having taught here several terms. Not being notified at the close of the first, or the commencement of the second term, my visits consequently were few and far between. At the examination, the questions in review were answered with much promptness, especially in arithmetic by Master Ned C. Rogers, a beginner. The perseverance of the boy's class in grammar deserves much credit, although the study to them was as a root out of dry ground. Rhetorical exercises were good.

Roll of Honor.—Edna P. Rand, Ned C. Rogers.

DISTRICT NO. 5—NORTH ROAD.

Prudential Committee, W. M. Stevens.

Two terms, both taught by Miss Morgia A. Shaw. This school gave evidence of close application to study and well improved time at the examinations. I found in this school some of the best scholars in town. The teacher devoted her energies to the school and the pupils profited by it, doing much credit to themselves and their instructor.

Roll of Honor.—First term.—Priscilla Rayno, Lizzie Rayno, Josie C. Shaw, Ethel M. Stevens, Charles S. Stevens.

Second term.—Pascal Rayno, Josie C. Shaw, Lucie G. Stevens.

DISTRICT NO. 6—MILLS.

Prudential Committee,—Frank W. Prince.

Three terms, all taught by Mrs C. L. Dunlap. A good new school-house, the only modern one in town, pleasant location.

ample play grounds. This school ranks with the best in town in scholarship and deportment. The attendance and conduct as reported in register exceptionally good. Rewards were offered in several classes, and Perfects to the smaller pupils, all tending to increase the interest. The reading in the several classes very good. A fine class of boys in grammar. The school was largely visited by parents and others during the year. The improvement made, behavior, and general appearance of the school gave good proof of the faithful manner that the teacher discharged her duties.

Roll of Honor.—First term.—Lucy Prince, Nettie Tucker, Susie Farnum, Blanche Whittemore, Annie Corser, Sarah Prince, Katie Sanborn, Abbie Shaw, Lizzie Shaw, Stephen Sanborn, Lewis Shaw, John Prince, Georgie Dunlap.

Second term.—Annie B. Corser, Lucy Prince, Sarah M. Prince, Blanche Whittemore, Katie Sanborn, Fred A. Dunlap, Stephen Sanborn, Georgia A. Dunlap, Lewis C. Shaw.

Third term.—Blanche Whittemore, Sarah M. Prince, Guy Gookin, Annie B. Corser.

DISTRICT NO. 7.—SMITH'S CORNER.

Prudential Committee, Levi W. Tucker.

Summer term, taught by Miss Lizzie B. Rogers. Miss Rogers commenced this school with the prestige of a good record. At our first visit the neatness of the school-room, and the almost perfect order was particularly noticeable. The creditable examination at the close gave evidence of a faithful teacher, and studious scholars.

Roll of Honor.—Susie R. McAlister, Nettie M. Scribner, Carlos O. McAlister, Clarence D. Scribner.

Fall term, Miss Myra A. Little, of Webster. Although with but little experience, this teacher by her exertions was able to show very good results. She has a taste for the profession. Nellie M. Scribner, considering her advantages, is a very fine scholar. The examination was satisfactory.

A poor school-house.

DISTRICT NO. 8.—THOMPSON'S CORNER.

Prudential Committee, William F. Pearsons.

One term, taught by Miss Naomi Shaw. Miss Shaw has had marked success as a teacher in town, and this term was no exception. Thoroughness was evident in every class examined. History was used in this school as a reader, with a view of retaining the leading facts. Some of the scholars reported be long in other districts. A school-house, the worse for wear.

Roll of Honor.—Ella Pearson, Mary R. Shaw, Rhoda M. Shaw, Harry Merrill, John B. Pearson.

DISTRICT NO. 9.—LOVERIN'S HILL.

This district has only a name to live. Not any schooling for the entire year. But few parents, few scholars and but very few dollars of school money; without a school house, without a school meeting during the year, without a prudential committee, and apparently without ambition to better their present condition.

DISTRICT NO. 10.—MOUNTAIN.

Prudential committee, Frank A. Watson.

One term, taught by Miss Florence B. Adams, of Sutton. A poor school-house; the highway, for play grounds; pleasant location. This is another very small school. The scholars were very backward in their studies at the commencement of the term; at the close had not made great advancement. Miss Adams was qualified to instruct a more advanced school, and with such a school could exhibited better results for her labor.

DISTRICT NO. 11.—RACCOON HILL.

Prudential Committee. Hale P. Shaw.

School house in fine repair; comfortable for school in winter. One term, taught by Miss Lizzie B. Rogers. This school at the examination gave evidence of close study; very good progress was made, showing thorough drill. The classes in arithmetic were well advanced, answering questions with much promptness; also the class in physiology passed a fine examination. One entire family of six children attended the school, the parents manifesting a deep interest in education. Miss Rogers well sustains her reputation as one of our best teachers.

Roll of Honor.—Mary K. Shaw, Rosy M. Shaw, Frank H. Shaw.

FREDERICK S. FIFIELD,

Superintending School Committee, year ending March 1, 1885.
